PART A : HEART

PURPOSE ASSESSMENT

A corporation's purpose is the driving force to business success. A Harvard Business Review and EY Beacon Institute surveyed titled "The Business Case of Purpose" said that, "Those companies able to harness the power of purpose to drive performance and profitability enjoy a distinct competitive advantage."

Take the purpose assessment of Your business by answering the following eleven questions to have a better view of how Your company is performing in facilitating its purpose.

1. Does Your culture include a commitment to a higher purpose, stakeholder independence, and mindful leadership?
2. Do You lead Your team with authenticity by knowing who You are and what Your goal is?
3. Is there a commitment to diversity, equality, and inclusion in workforces?
4. Does Your company produce an external annual report detailing its mission and how it relates to performance?
5. Does management lead based on the truths that are the foundation for the company or product and help guide the company from these principles?
6. Is the purpose of the business to bring a vision to life?

7. Do You face problems or opportunities as a team with a willingness to work hard with integrity, grit, empathy, and a team spirit?
8. Does the corporation fulfill the needs of stakeholders, not just their wants or desires? Does this reflect a higher purpose that extends beyond profits?
9. Do You develop a learning culture through various means, cultivate curiosity, and strive to become better each day?
10. Do You apply a higher purpose to daily tasks with the right attitude? Do You attempt to win with commitment, teamwork, and integrity?
11. Does management act like leaders with loyalty, dedication, and decisiveness?

EMOTIONAL HEALTH ASSESSMENT

Companies usually think that being healthy is all about getting fit and eating well, but it is also essential to take care of psychological health. Employees are prone to different negative emotions due to work, such as stress, anxiety, and depression. Creating an emotionally healthy workplace works wonders for a company.

Take the emotional health assessment of Your business by answering the following ten10 questions

1. Is there a manifesto focusing on people?
2. Do You compensate people well, together with demonstrating love and respect, therefore tying them firmly to the goals of the company? (This includes being generous to people who are leaving)

3. Do You fill the most vacant positions by promotion from within?
4. Do You lead with care, integrity, compassion, and empathy?
5. Do You foster emotional intelligence: values, passions, and principles (EQ) spiritual intelligence (SQ) and system intelligence (SYQ)?
6. Do You deliver praise and positive recognition without sugar-coating?
7. Do You prioritize work-life harmony?
8. Do You acknowledge team members' morale by giving positive feedback?
9. Do You hold a high degree of trust and transparency for both internal and external stakeholders?
10. Have You developed a culture where team members do things for others with no expectation of a return, reward, or recognition?

PART B : HEALTH

FOOD ASSESSMENT

The expression “You are what You eat” implies business, because what Your organization takes in builds its culture and identity. Improving Your employees’ eating habits at work is probably one of the most challenging behavior changes to promote. After all, people in the office work longer hours and have a busy life, and a piece of pizza or fast food is often a lot more appealing than picking healthy food choices such as plant-based options or other alternatives.

Take the food assessment of Your business by answering the following four questions to have a better view of how Your business is performing in prioritizing team members’ health through food.

1. Do You emphasize the importance of physical health in reaching Your full potential? Have You adopted the FeelGoodX principles: whole foods, plant-based nutrition, healthy fats, and clean drinking water?
2. Do You provide clean drinking water, and if there is a daily beverage available, do You make sure there is an option for non-dairy drinkers?
3. Have You put food safety standard guidelines in places where there is food involved?
4. Do You provide a regular educational campaign on sugary drink consumption, risk of excessive sugar and salt, and healthy eating?

BODY AND MOVEMENT ASSESSMENT

We all know that moving our body every day is so vital to our internal and external health. That's why all companies should make sure that there are overall healthcare and wellness programs available. But what does it mean for businesses?

Take the body and movement assessment by answering the following eight questions to have a better view of how Your business is performing in facilitating and encouraging exercising as a means of a healthy lifestyle inside and outside of work.

1. Our healthcare and wellness available, including preventive and annual general check-ups for all team members?
2. Are there reasonable retirement benefits for all employees, including part-time workers?
3. Are there occupational health and safety standard practices in place?
4. Are there family-friendly policies, such as flextime and parental leave?
5. Is ergonomic equipment used for comfort and proper posture while working, with the option of a standing desk also available?
6. Do You support and promote team members to participate in private and community physical events?
7. Do You promote a smoke-free workplace?
8. Do You provide weight management programs by measuring the team members' Body Mass Index (BMI) quarterly?

FINANCE ASSESSMENT

A business is established to create money. It will only be able to operate if it is financially healthy. All businesses experience financial ups and downs. However, the long-term health of any company depends on earning more money than it spends. Just as a doctor checks a patient's current wellbeing by examining blood pressure, temperature, and pulse, every business must keep strict and regular check-ups on its financial condition.

Take the finance assessment of Your business by answering the following 16 questions to have a better view of how Your business is performing in facilitating business/team members' financial health.

1. Do You have a philosophy of collaboration and partnership with all external stakeholders?
2. Do You have transparency when it comes to compensation?
3. Do You have team compensation to reinforce nature cohesion?
4. Do You have a transparent process that allows team members to access primary available financial and operation data?
5. Do You have a formal commitment to donating a certain percentage of revenue to charities?
6. Do You make financial decisions based on company values and data, in a disciplined, rational, and dispassionate manner?
7. Do You have the mindset as an owner of the business to apply long-term financial goals?
8. Do all team members know about personal finance through coaching?

9. Do You use the nature of human psychology and not distort reality to fit in with Your model?
10. Do You make better financial decisions by understanding disciplines like biology, psychology, history, philosophy, and engineering?
11. Are You aware that social-proof financial decisions can lead to disaster?
12. Does management understand the power of compound interest as the heart and soul of finance, as well as other aspects like skills and relationships?
13. Do You make sure not to look at risk only with numbers for financial decisions?
14. Is the proper allocation of capital the number one priority?
15. Our reputation and integrity the most valuable assets?
16. Is genuine free cash flow more critical than EBITDA?

OFFICE AND ENVIRONMENT ASSESSMENT

As a business, it is Your responsibility to maintain a safe and healthy workplace. It can help You focus Your efforts on improving the environment. Your drive in doing this must describe what the people in Your organization do to prevent injuries, illnesses, and harming the environment.

Take office and environment assessment of Your business by answering the following 15 questions to have a better view of how Your business is performing in encouraging a safe, clean workplace and promoting environmental protection.

1. Have You created an environment where everyone can get more out of themselves?
2. Has management created this environment through support, respect, and trust?

3. Are there fun work environments to develop socio-emotional communication?
4. Do performance reviews cover performance on job requirements, relationships, and innovation (best practices)?
5. Have You created an environment where everyone is willing to persevere, work hard, and always be open to learning?
6. Are You part of a community as a responsible citizen?
7. Do You include the environment as a stakeholder and apply love, not fear, when approaching it?
8. Is there a formal code of conduct that holds the suppliers accountable for social and environmental performance?
9. Do You work with communities to develop social and environmental best practices?
10. Do You monitor, record, and reduce greenhouse gas emissions and water consumption, and use energy-efficient systems?
11. Do You conduct life cycle assessments of Your products?
12. Do You encourage Your teams to use virtual meeting technology and monitor carbon footprint for "live" meetings or seminars?
13. Do You have environmental policies that are clear to new and existing team members?
14. Do You avoid single-use items and properly dispose of harmful/hazardous waste? (e.g., batteries, paint, packaging, bathroom cleaners, instruments that contain mercury, and electronic devices.)?
15. Do You maintain a clean and organized workplace and regularly remove clutter?

PART C : SOUL

RELATIONSHIP ASSESSMENT

Your employees' results will judge Your company's success as a leader; therefore, those results can be seen as a reflection of Your relationship with the people You work alongside. People working for Your business are crucial assets, not just Your employees, because they contribute majorly to the profits, sales figures, market, values, and customer relations. No organization or person wants to end up with a stressful working environment.

Take the relationship assessment of Your business by answering the following 20 questions to have a better view of how Your business is performing in encouraging a positive relationship among team members and higher management.

1. Have You created specific targets for customer/ employee satisfaction and shared these publicly?
2. Do You conduct regular, anonymous internal satisfaction, and engagement surveys?
3. Does Your corporation create values for all its stakeholders and think of competitors as allies in striving for mutual excellence?
4. Do You recognize unions as a stakeholder?
5. Are there at least quarterly open discussions for management on coaching their team?
6. Do You employ GAM: Gratitude, Appreciation, and Miracles in all interactions and communications?
7. Are all communications, either verbal or in writing, concise, clear, and compassionate?

8. Do You always strive for a politics-free environment?
9. Does management run a decision process that ensures all perspectives get heard and considered?
10. Are high-performance but difficult team members well managed and tolerated as long as their behavior is not unethical or abusive. Their value outweighs the toll their action takes on management, colleagues, and teams?
11. Do You practice a free form listening community with full and undivided attention?
12. Is negative feedback delivered in private?
13. Do You build communities inside and outside work to make it much easier for people to connect?
14. Do You help people, and are You generous with time and other resources?
15. Do You promote balanced diversity (age, race, gender, education, experience) at all levels?
16. Do You acknowledge vulnerability from the top to the lowest position?
17. Do You make it clear that unethical or dishonest behavior, violence, discrimination, sexual harassment, and bullying will not be tolerated, as well as taking steps to eliminate it?
18. Do You provide activities that create opportunities for socialization?
19. Do You hold live broadcast meetings that are available for team members in different offices?
20. Do You hold live broadcast meetings that are available for team members in different offices?
21. Do You provide networking opportunities between leaders and team members where team members can ask questions directly?

MINDSET AND PRACTICE ASSESSMENT

Having the right mindset matters, whether You're a founder, CEO, trainee, new, or old team member. If You don't have the right mindset, then Your decisions aren't aligned with the rest of the company. Having the right mindset at work doesn't just help people to thrive in stressful situations; it also gives them the freedom to push the boundaries of their abilities and develop new skills.

Take the mindset and practice assessment of Your business by answering the following 16 questions to have a better view of how Your business is performing and encouraging the right mindset and practices in the workplace.

1. Are You applying intrinsic motivation with mastery, purpose, and autonomy to lead a team
2. Do You encourage mindfulness, meditation, and contemplative practices such as meditation, yoga, Tai Chi, and breathing exercises?
